ABSTRACT

A customer self-checkout system includes one or more checkout stations and multiple supervisor terminals. The supervisor terminals provide support to, and control over, the self-checkout system and checkout stations. The supervisory terminals may be wireless terminals

5   that can capture self-checkout customer identification information including signatures, biometric data (e.g., fingerprints), images, and other forms of identification.